Dear Ana,

Glad to hear back from you. Kudos to your psychology exam! I am glad to hear that you are enjoying your summer!

Ana, I want to tell you a little bit about my family. There are 5 people in my family: my father, my mother, me, my younger brother, Nansan, and my younger sister, Catherine. My brother and I are twin brothers. Catherine is 14 this year.

My parents are businessmen. They do import/export businesses between China and Canada. Every year they fly back and forth China and Canada. We call them astronauts. When my brother and I were young kids, we seldom had the chance to have dinner with them because they were too busy working with their businesses; sometimes they came back at midnight and all of us had fallen asleep. But they always brought us along to places where they do businesses. I like those times as I can see a lot of wonderful things on the road; eat ice-cream, peanuts, and a lot of other food in the car; and have fun with my family. Most of my family time I can remember was spent in the car.

My brother just recently graduated from University of Toronto. He studies life sciences. He kills mice in the lab all the time!! (Hopefully his mice didn't die for nothing.)Ever since we were little kids, there have been fightings going on in our house all the time. You know, when little boys get into conflicts, they don't talk. As you put it, 'Actions say much more than words.' So we fought for everything, ice-cream, toy guns, sleeping beds...you name it! But as we grow older, we learnt a more civilized way of resolving problems---we negotiate with logic and words. I guess the grow-up process of me and my brother can be analogous to the history of human civilization- from uncivilized barbaric behavior (i.e.

fighting) to civilized controlled behavior (i.e. reasoning and logic).But all in all, my brother is the closest person I can trust and rely on.

Right now, Catherine is studying in middle school. She studies math, English, art, and science. She's also studying history-history of Canada. She's doing so well at school that she started to tutor other kids and receive $10/hour in return. She also keeps a hamster.

I graduated from University of Toronto last year. I studied business and commerce. Right now I am working in a bank. I am planning to open a school in the future and teach young people the knowledge of economics and business at an affordable price. Maybe you'll help me teach history? : )

Ok, Ana, I think I've made the translator exhausted. Please help me to thank the translator. I will talk to you very soon.

Take care and have a very nice day!

Yours Truly

Calvin

P.S. your new photos look very nice! :D
